Discussing career options in a blog

In January 2018, all students of year 9 were supposed to have a one-week internship at a social institution such as kindergardens or old people's homes. During this week, two of our classes had to write blog entries on the twinspace about our thoughts and experiences about practising these specific professions. The students from our partner schools later on commented on our blogs, asked questions about our experiences and created quizzes on them. Hence, we achieved intercultural communication on the vital questions of our future careers to choose.
